MARTIN'S GOING THE EXTRA MILE

Diabetic to cycle from John O'Groats to Land's End – on a fold-up bike

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

ATTEMPTING to pedal the length of the UK would be a feat of stamina on a normal bike, but Martin Ransley, who needs daily insulin injections, is trying it on his foldaway cycle with its tiny 16-inch diameter wheels.

The 61-year-old education advisor, from Lindsay Road, Crouch End, will set off next month on a gruelling 875-mile charity ride from John O'Groats to Land's End to raise vital funds for Diabetes UK.

Martin, who has type I diabetes, will use his own folding bike, designed for short, nippy city commutes rather than the enormous distance which he intends covering.

That will make it even more of a test of endurance for rider and machine because the small wheels have to rotate more times than a normal bike's in order to cover the same distance, meaning tyres wear down more quickly.

But Martin who, hopes to complete the ride in 14 days, is undaunted and believes he has the stamina, determination and the back-up support team to help him achieve his aim.

He said: "I'm doing it for the personal achievement and to raise funds for Diabetes UK."

"Health has always been a priority and I have never let diabetes get in the way of running 10ks, half-marathons, playing squash or any other sporting activity. I swim every day in Park Road Lido in Hornsey or at the ponds at Hampstead Heath, where the water temperature drops to one degree during winter and sometimes approaches 20 during the summer."

Martin, who was diagnosed with type 1 diabetes on his 21st birthday, cannot produce insulin and needs daily injections of the hormone.

Married with three grown-up children, he will be joined by his wife Claire on the second week of the challenge in the support car. His children will also complete parts of the ride with him as and when they can.

Claire Lubbock, fundraiser for Diabetes UK London, said: "Cycling this distance is no mean feat and involves a lot of dedication, time and training. We are really grateful to Martin for his fundraising efforts and the money raised will help us to get information and support to everyone affected by diabetes."

Steel band helps to mark land's transformation into pocket park

THE calypso rhythms of a steel band were part of the celebrations to mark the opening of a tropical oasis in Tottenham's West Green Road.

Inspired by the area's cultural diversity, what used to be a rundown cul-de-sac and a hot spot for antisocial behaviour at the junction with Houghton Road, has been transformed into a pocket park with colourful flowerbeds and new seating.

Residents and traders helped design the new park through a dedicated West Green Road Improvement Group. It has been funded jointly by Haringey Council and the Greater London Authority's Pocket Park Programme.

Alan Strickland, cabinet member for regeneration and housing, said: "This project demonstrates that regeneration is about more than new buildings – it's about better public spaces that bring our community together and put the ideas of local people first."

Big bash: Steel drums mark the occasion

Police make a special delivery

POLICE helped deliver a baby at the roadside after a car taking a pregnant woman to hospital broke down on the way.

Two officers from Haringey on a routine patrol came across the stranded vehicle when they were flagged down by a man in Station Road, New Southgate, in the early hours of Tuesday morning last week.

He explained to PC Laura De'Jesus and Luke James that he had been on his way to hospital with his heavily pregnant wife, who had gone into labour. After calling for an ambulance, they realised she was in the final stages as the baby's head was crowning, and safely delivered the child themselves.

Paramedics arrived a short time after and mother and baby were taken to hospital.

PC De'Jesus said: "The great thing about being a police officer is that you never know what you are going to encounter on your shift. I am glad we were on hand and able to assist the woman in delivering her healthy baby boy."

Knife amnesty

POLICE have launched a month-long knife amnesty in Haringey.

The amnesty, which runs until July 9, allows for the disposal of knives in one of two special bins outside Tottenham police station, in High Road, and Wood Green police station, in High Road, without being prosecuted for having an offensive weapon.

Acting Sergeant Roberto Vacca said: "Aside from the obvious gain from physically removing these dangerous weapons from our streets, it is important that the initiative changes attitudes within our community to make Haringey a safer place for everyone who lives and works there."

Man goes on trial for machete murder of Palmira Silva

A MAN accused of beheading an 82-year-old great-grandmother is due to stand trial at the Old Bailey on Monday.

Nicholas Salvador, 25, of Gilda Avenue, Ponders End, pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity at a hearing at the Old Bailey in April.

He is accused of killing Palmira Silva on September 4 last year after storming through the gardens of Nightingale Road, Edmonton, armed with a machete.

He is also charged with one count of actual bodily harm against police officer Bernard Hamilton, who was one of the response officers called to the scene after neighbours alerted police that a man armed with a long blade had attacked a cat.

Armed officers raced to the scene as the attack unfolded and immediately undertook a large-scale operation to evacuate residents from homes along Nightingale Road, cordoning off a swathe of the street that runs through Edmonton.

The trial is expected to last for one day or two days.

Four years later - three jobs created

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A MULTI-THOUSAND-pound project funded with money set aside to regenerate communities ravaged by the 2011 riots through increasing employment opportunities has created just three jobs since its inception.

The Greater London Authority awarded Enfield Council £600,000 as part of the Mayor of London's regeneration fund set up in the wake of the violence to help regenerate the borough after rioters swept along Southbury Road, ransacking businesses including Healthfare Chemist, which suffered £20,000 worth of damage.

When the project was finalised in 2013, it came under fire from shopkeepers whose businesses had been damaged in the riots, including Dipak Shah, owner of the pharmacy, who told the Advertiser that the fund should have been used to boost the town centres affected by the riots.

The then cabinet member for regeneration Del Goddard insisted that the project would create 1,200 jobs – but it has now emerged that the reality is rather different.

In a written question last month to the cabinet member for economic development, Alan Sitkin, by Tory councillor for Chase ward Nick Dines asking how many jobs had been created, Mr Sitkin replied that the number was three.

He stressed that community growing projects at Forty Hall Farm, in Forty Hill, Enfield, Albany Park, in Enfield Wash, and Arnos Park had resulted in more than 100 volunteer places.

He added that as well as funding 16 community growing projects, an entirely new business had been created as a direct result of the investment – The Enfield Veg Co.

Speaking to the Advertiser, Mr Sitkin said that more jobs would be created as the project continued to evolve.

"This is a long-term process and we are in the early stages of launching a business plan to set out a commercial way of moving forward with this plan," he said.

"No one creates a business without doing their research first – and that is exactly what we are doing."

In his answer to Mr Dines, Mr Sitkin revealed that out of the £600,000 pot of money from the GLA spending for this year and last was £330,000.

Mr Sitkin added that one of the key strands of the project was the involvement of schools in the scheme.

It takes time: Alan Sitkin, Enfield Council's cabinet member for economic development

He told Mr Dines: "Twenty-two primary schools have received funding and training to start growing on their school grounds and more than 600 children have been involved in growing projects."

"An additional 35 primary schools are keen to grow and will receive support over the next year."

The call of the wild

Nature lovers are bowled by former sports ground which is now a woodland wonder

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A HIDDEN gem of greenspace in the borough threw open its gates at the weekend to show off the secret garden in the heart of the suburbs.

The Woodcroft Wildspace, in Winchmore Hill, took part in the Open Squares weekend event on Saturday and Sunday where people form all over London can discover new gardens in urban heartlands.

Bob Lavell, the founder and director of the Woodcroft Wildspace, told the Advertiser that about 75 people had visited the space over the course of the two days.

"They were impressed," he said. "Families came and some children couldn't wait to run through the space while others were inquisitive about all that goes on here."

The three acres of wildspace lie sandwiched between Broad Walk and Woodland Way on the site of a former sports grounds.

While bees (from the hives tucked away in the north corner of the grounds) buzz around the flowers and vegetables in the organic plots and dragonflies skim over the ponds of the wetlands section, visitors can walk through a managed wilderness in the heart of the suburbs.

Speaking before the weekend's events, Bob said it was a deliberate decision to maintain the three acres as a wild space, with woods, meadows, brambles and orchards galore as a miniature wilderness – rather than try and tame it into a manicured park.

Gesturing at the tall wild grasses and flowers swaying slightly in the summer breeze, he explained: "This used to be a cricket pitch, but with these different types of long grasses and wildflowers we have created a meadow."

"Bees can buzz through, it's good for insects and then later in the summer we will cut it back to let people sit on it – and it can be used much like an open-air classroom."

Ponds, bogs, beehives, an organic sensory garden, a woodland garden and brambles have proved a rich resource for teaching children about nature.

A log cabin, partly hidden by lush summer foliage, is revealed to be a centre where schoolchildren learn about the eco-systems and life cycles going on all around them – an innovation made possible by money from the Big Lottery project and Enfield's Residents' Priority Fund.

With a genuine eco-gym under construction, Bob also has high hopes that funding can be secured for a more substantial centre in the heart of the site providing more information for visitors on the flora and fauna.

"Children love this site," he said. "They are learning for the curriculum, but importantly they're also having a great time."

After a weekend spent giving guided tours and taking people through Woodcroft's wild and hidden nooks and crannies, Bob believes that despite the inclement weather, people's imaginations have been captured by what they saw.

"People came from central London as well as from Enfield Lock," he added. "It shows how interested people are in projects like this."

THOUSANDS of runners limbered up to raise £270,000 for Cancer Research UK.

They raced around Trent Park in the charity's Race for Life event.

Women and children competed in the five or 10-kilometre race on Sunday and runners dressed up in pink to celebrate their achievements.

Many of them had pictures on their T-shirts of friends and family who had been diagnosed with cancer and others had written details of the reasons they were inspired to join the event, off Cockfosters Road.

Across the country 39,835 people participated in Race for Life events and helped raise £3.3million to help in the fight against cancer.

Women looking for another challenge can sign up to compete in the charity's first women-only marathon and half-marathon at Lee Valley on Sunday, October 4.

Controversial libraries shake-up moves closer

Plans may involve job cuts, council admits

By Julia Gregory

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A CONTROVERSIAL scheme which could see the creation of four flagship libraries in the borough, with the rest becoming community facilities, is getting closer to being approved in a bid to prevent wholesale closures.

A report, due to be considered at a meeting of Enfield Council's cabinet tonight, sets out plans for the next three years.

In the last financial year 1.3 million items were borrowed during 1.5 million visits to Enfield's libraries.

The report says: "With the council having to find a further £80m in savings over the next four years, library services cannot be exempt from making savings."

Although the report being considered by the cabinet does not set out any job losses, a council spokesman said there would "potentially" be redundancies or staff redeployment.

The library service currently has 118 staff, with 60 volunteers helping out, and brings in an income of £514,000 from fees, charges, hiring out rooms and sharing its senior staff with other London boroughs.

The proposals include plans to open the libraries in Enfield Town, in Church Street, Edmonton Green, in South Mall, Palmers Green, in Broomfield Lane, and Ordnance Unity, in Hertford Road, Enfield Lock, seven days a week as Changes afoot: Enfield Town Library, in Church Street, would be designated a flagship facility under the proposals being considered flagship libraries. If the plans get the go-ahead, the extended hours will run for a year and then be reviewed.

However, it also proposes turning the council's 13 other libraries into community libraries. The council plans to find "co-location" partners to share library buildings, which could see "the space occupied by the library smaller than the current layout".

The report's author stressed the council would still be responsible for the service. It is also planning to offer at least two libraries to voluntary groups and will advertise the option in August.

The proposals would also see an end to the mobile library service. The council says that 83 adults use the service and 23 care home residents use the home delivery service.

Under the plans they will be offered home deliveries, which would be run with the support of volunteers.

The recommendation are due to be considered by full council on Wednesday, June 24.

ACTORS celebrated the 800th anniversary of the signing of Magna Carta in a ceremony in Enfield this week.

They re-enacted the 1215 signing of the document which signalled a truce between King John and the barons and became key in the development of constitutional law and the rights of the individual.

The event at Chase Side Memorial Gardens on Monday saw actors playing the part of King John and the barons who put their signature to the historic document in Runnymede in Surrey 800 years ago.

Magna Carta was the first agreement limiting the power of the monarch and upholding the rights of individuals.

Just four copies survive and its impact has been immense.

It influenced the US Bill of Rights and the American constitution,

Magna Carta's signing celebrated in costume along with other legal frameworks around the world.

The event in Enfield also saw the launch of photo and art competitions for adults and children and a children's poetry contest for the 10 to 17-year-olds.

Both competitions take the theme of Magna Carta and liberty with cash prizes up for grabs.

Entry forms are available at www.millfieldtheatre.co.uk or www.fortyhallestate.co.uk and entries have to be in by Friday, July 31.

Shortlisted entries will go on display at Forty Hall, in Forty Hill, Enfield, from September 1 to 13 and at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, from September 15 to 27.

Forty Hall will also play host to an evening of poetry and music celebrating liberty and Magna Carta on Saturday, July 1, led by Alan Murray, one of the organisers of the Enfield Poets group.

Tickets cost £5 and the evening features the work of writers who flourished in the centuries after Magna Carta, including William Shakespeare, John Milton and George Herbert.

School's half-day as water main bursts

By Julia Gregory

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

SCHOOLCHILDREN received an unexpected half-day's holiday on Monday afternoon after a water main burst in a nearby street.

Parents of pupils at Eldon Infants and Junior school, in Eldon Road, Edmonton, were contacted by the school at lunchtime to come and collect their youngsters.

It followed the burst water main in Exeter Road earlier that morning which left scores of homes without drinking water.

The burst main also reduced water pressure in surrounding properties, including the school, disrupting water supplies and making it difficult to flush toilets. Headteacher Julie Messer said: "We had knock-on effects with the supply to the site, but it was restored later that day and the school re-opened as normal the next day."

Thames Water fixed the burst pipe and restored supplies to homes late on Monday afternoon.

However, with Exeter Road remaining dug up and closed to traffic, residents faced further inconvenience and disruption.

A spokeswoman for Thames Water said their engineers finished repairing the burst water main at 4pm on Monday.

"We're sorry to anyone who was affected by low water pressure," she added. "We fixed the pipe and water supplies should be back to normal."

Monty Meth

Life president – Enfield Over-50s Forum

THERE'S an old saying that if you are not a rebel when you are young you have no heart; but as you age you mellow, conform, comply. Well, in my case the older I get the angrier I become.

I'm furious with the way our young people are being hounded – not a word in the Queen's Speech about the promised 200,000 houses to be built so that young families can aspire to a home of their own – as my generation did.

Am I alone in thinking it is a pernicious welfare cut to remove housing benefit entitlement for all 18 to 21-year-olds even though some will have nowhere but the streets to sleep?

There's evidence galore that selling and not replacing council houses – and now housing association homes – will not increase the supply of affordable homes for young people, yet the policy is pursued regardless.

I despair when I hear John Kerr, the head of Enfield Grammar School (where my son was a pupil in the 1970s), warn that his budget is not enough to avoid a cut in teachers' jobs, an increase in class sizes or cutting subjects such as music and the arts from the curriculum.

Worse still, I hear that children of an evicted family have to travel from Croydon, in south London, to a school in Enfield because that's where they have been rehoused.

Some people, I know, will say I'm always whingeing – but have the Scots suffered fewer cuts because their people know how to show their anger?

Cuts could spell the end for vital public services

HUGE spending cuts proposed by the Conservatives could see many council-run services disappear within the next five years.

Council cuts in London mean women fleeing domestic violence being turned away from refuges, a lack of street lighting plunging communities into darkness and children's centres, libraries, parks and police stations being closed.

Less cash for local government means people pay more for parking, social care, births, deaths and marriages, as well as burials and cremations.

The Prime Minister has said that only £1 in every £100 of government spending would be cut in the first two years – but this claim simply does not stand up to scrutiny. Figures from the last Budget show that £26.6 billion is set to be cut – £6.53 in each £100 spent this year, then a further £5.57 next year.

Only last week, councils were told they are to lose £7.18 out of every £100 they receive in public health grants.

If the government has its way, local services that councils are not legally obliged to provide will start to disappear. Pest control, museums, allotments, youth services and sports centres could become things of the past, while councils will find it increasingly difficult to provide statutory services such as social care and child protection.

It's time to give local councils respite from the austerity axe.

Licence plates make everyone accountable

I WRITE in reply to David Hughes' letter ("This is about how we manage our roads..."), Advertiser, May 20) and also in reply to Hal Haines' letter ("Research shows how drivers break the law", Advertiser, May 27).

I have no quarrel with considerate cyclists, just as I would like to think that Mr Haines presumably has no quarrel with considerate motorists.

My assertion was not that drivers of plated vehicles are more law-abiding than cyclists, but that drivers of plated vehicles and plated cycles would be able to be held to account, whereas those without plates cannot.

Mr Hughes (who is Enfield Green Party's cycling activist, as stated on its website) suggests that 30mph is often exceeded, whereas he seems to think that the same traffic, which does exceed 30 mph, will adhere to 20 mph.

I am struggling to understand his logic and he fails to see the potential danger in removing pedestrian crossings, traffic lights and other controls and setting a lower limit when pedestrians will be even more at risk from those travelling at excessive speed for the prevailing conditions, whether they have four wheels or two wheels, whether motorised or not. There may be a place for 20mph around schools, for example, but not everywhere, when the truth is that the overall result in increased rpm, by having to drop a gear, will increase the emissions, despite conjecture to the contrary of unreliable statistics, which do not take into account this salient fact.

You're safer on a bike...

IN a borough struggling to give birth to a cycling future aimed particularly at reducing short, driver-only car journeys, Jenny Jones's letter ("We must have a plan to tackle air pollution", Advertiser, June 3) carries particular force.

Her proposition that Enfield and other outer London boroughs should join the London Mayor's Ultra Low Emission Zone also carries weight because very many driver-only journeys are made in cars powered by diesel, in London by far the biggest contributor to poor air quality and the related illnesses and deaths.

I am particularly fascinated by this subject because when I announced my intention to return to cycling last autumn the majority of my friends responded like this: "At your age (77) you can't do that, it's far too dangerous!"

What they and most drivers seem not to have taken into account/noticed, is that the worst air quality on our streets is to be found behind the steering wheel because car bodies pick up and hold traffic exhaust gases – put another way a driver travelling the same route as a cyclist experiences the poorest air quality.

This matters in the cycling/pollution debate because in 2014, for example, more than 3,400 Londoners died as a result of poor air quality whereas 13 cyclists died as a result of traffic-related incidents.

Clearly, cyclists are statistically safer than drivers though it's not possible on this data to give percentages.

So, not only am I safer on a bike, but I also gain valuable exercise which puts less strain on my aging legs and hips than walking.

Good start, but more is needed

THE impact of asbestos on a worker's health usually does not come to light until many years after exposure, at which time the employer's insurance details have sometimes been lost or destroyed, making it impossible for victims to pursue compensation.

People dying of the fatal asbestos-related lung cancer mesothelioma can now turn to a payment scheme in this event, which provides redress to help make them comfortable in their final months. This development came after several years of campaigning by many victims' groups, including the Association of Personal Injury Lawyers.

But the many workers suffering, and dying, from asbestos-related cancers and industrial diseases other than mesothelioma are excluded.

The government can, and should, start making positive change by extending the scheme to help those people who find themselves in a horrifying situation because an employer failed to protect them.

The relief for victims of mesothelioma and their families is a good start, but more needs to be done.

We must solve housing crisis

NOW the dust has settled after the general election, I wanted to take this opportunity to congratulate Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes.

Affording a home is tough for many people in Enfield. At an average of £393,777, house prices are 15 times the average take home pay of people who live in the area. Rents in the private sector are no better – taking up an average of 52 per cent of local people's pay cheques. For many, buying a home of their own is a distant dream.

The National Housing Federation represents more than 1,000 housing associations that provide homes to more than five million people across the country. Our new government has committed to end the housing crisis within a generation, now it must free up land and provide proper investment.

We look forward to supporting and working with Mr Burrowes in parliament to solve the housing crisis.

MBE for chairman of primary school governors

MBE: Ray Barker

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A LIFETIME dedicated to education has seen an Enfield resident awarded with a top gong.

Ray Barker, the chairman of the board of governors of Honilands Primary School, in Lovell Road, Bullsmoor, has been awarded an MBE in the Queen's Birthday Honours.

Mr Barker was given the gong in recognition of his decades spent at the forefront of education.

Starting off as a teacher, he soon moved into educational publishing.

From there he worked in urban regeneration schemes as well as battling to improve literacy rates through the National Strategy and Education Action Zones.

And under his chairmanship of the board of governors, Honilands school has gone from operating under a "notice to improve" to a "good" rating by Ofsted.

Mr Barker insists that much of the credit for the turnaround should be credited to the school's staff and pupils.

He told the Advertiser: "I am proud to have seen the school move in challenging circumstances to an Ofsted-rated 'good' school. This has been due to the hard work of all the staff at Honilands. They really care about the children there."

"Kudos for this is not mine as reflected in the MBE. For most part, this should go to the inspirational leadership team at Honilands, led by Ralph Silverman [the headteacher], who sees the importance of good teaching and providing the children with interesting and innovative approaches to learning."

...and it's a British Empire Medal for veteran campaigner Irene, 84

BEM: Irene Wilson

SPENDING decades on the front line of campaigning earned Enfield resident Irene Wilson recognition in the Queen's Birthday Honours.

The 84-year-old, of Carnarvon Avenue, was awarded the British Empire Medal for services to the community.

"To be honest I would like to thank the people who put me forward for this," Mrs Wilson told the Advertiser.

"I know one of the people who nominated me and I would like to say a big thank you to them".

The great-grandmother-of-three has championed campaigns throughout her 52-year-career with the Willow Road Residents' Association.

She joined the battle to save the accident and emergency department at Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, and has fought to keep the indoor bowls facility at the David Lloyd leisure centre, in Carterhatch Lane, Enfield.

Her involvement in community agitating started when she first moved to the Carnarvon Avenue five decades ago.

"I moved from a small terraced house to this lovely home with lots of open space around it and then I heard that the council wanted to build a block of flats at the bottom of my garden," she said.

"So, of course, I campaigned against that."

Mrs Wilson admit she has become something of the resident agony aunt for her neighbours.

She helped out when they were wrongly signed up to switching their gas and electricity accounts.

"I felt quite humbled as neighbours trusted me with their personal details – their bank details, everything," she said.

And she says that she has remained such a community stalwart for all these years because "that's what it's all about".

"I hope that there's somebody there for me when I need them," she added. "That's what neighbourliness is really, isn't it?"

Also awarded the British Empire Medal was Allan Jones, president of Edmonton Sea Cadets, based in Advent Way.

Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Richard Power feels that it's all about service. 'Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done.

We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole.'

Cloudy2Clear service the Enfield, Edmonton, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill & Southgate areas and Richard is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. 'The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated.'

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Richard a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

Best feet forward...

STRAPPING on hiking boots and marching through the night is how three friends intend to spend 20 hours in each other's company.

Tim Cunningham, 41, of Church Street, Enfield, works in customer sales at AW Electrical, on the Great Cambridge Trading Estate in Ponders End, and is setting off with company director Anthony Oliveri, 31, on a 100-kilometre hike from Hackney to Cambridge.

Aiming to average 10 minutes per kilometre, Tim and Anthony, who is originally from Edmonton and who now lives in Essex, are already in intense training for the hike on August 28, which they are hoping to complete in just 20 hours – starting off in the morning from Hackney Marshes and arriving in Cambridge as the sun rises over the River Cam the next day.

Tim is taking on the epic challenge to raise money for Leukaemia Care and Anthony is hoping that the huge undertaking will inspire people to donate to the Make a Wish foundation.

The duo will be joined by David Percival, of DAP Electrical, – a customer of AW Electrical.

“We want to raise money for charity and also taking part in something like this is great for the team,” Tim told the Advertiser.

Last year, Tim led a team of eight colleagues and customers on an equally tough challenge when they walked from Putney Bridge to Henley-on-Thames, completing the 100-kilometre trail in just under 24 hours.

“Last year, eight of us did it and this year only three of us are taking it on – I think that tells you how tough it can be,” Tim added.

“Walking through the night is the hard part. It is a long way to walk – if you could do it in a couple days, then it isn't so bad. But it's doing it all at once – that's where stamina comes in.”

To donate to help the hikers on their way, Tim's fundraising page for Leukaemia Care can be found on: <https://www.justgiving.com/Tim-Cunningham2/> while to donate to Anthony, who is hoping to raise £1,000 for Make a Wish, visit <https://www.justgiving.com/Anthony-Oliveri>

Walking tall: Tim Cunningham and Anthony Oliveri will be hiking from Hackney to Cambridge for their chosen charities

Chase Farm Hospital

Public meeting set to discuss Chase Farm's redevelopment

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS will have a chance to learn more about the planned development of Chase Farm Hospital at a public meeting at the end of the month.

The Royal Free London NHS Foundation Trust is inviting anyone interested in the multi-million-pound redevelopment of the hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, to attend the meeting at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, on Tuesday, June 30, at 6pm.

Residents will have a chance to view the proposed plans and listen to a presentation on how the hospital's services will be kept running throughout the redevelopment process.

Those attending will also have the time to grill hospital bosses about the plans. Chase Farm's hospital director Fiona Jackson said: "We are fully committed to continuing dialogue with the local community about our exciting plans to invest in the future of Chase Farm Hospital, so we hope to see high attendance at the public meeting later this month."

Anyone who is interested in attending should email rf.cfstakeholders@nhs.net and more information about the redevelopment can be found at www.royalfree.nhs.uk/chasefarm

The plans to develop the hospital site include bringing the spread-out nature of the 39-acre site into a more compact 17 acres.

It is planned to sell some of the land for housing and a school and the trust expects to raise between £30 and £40million to reinvest into modernising the hospital.

Lots to choose from as festival gets under way

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

GET set to let your hair down and party for the next three months as Enfield's spectacular summer festival serves up a variety of entertainment and fun attractions.

Running from June until September, the council-funded extravaganza has something for everyone, from open-air theatre, to tots trampolining, classical music and flower shows.

Brass bands and opera, plus a performance by top cellist Julian Lloyd Webber, are among the live music on offer during the Enfield Choral and Orchestral Music Festival, which kicks off today and runs until Sunday, with concerts at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, and the Millfield Theatre, in Silver Street, Edmonton.

As part of the festival, Southgate's Chickenshed Theatre throws its own family festival of the arts and theatre on Sunday.

The Edmonton Summer Festival returns to Pymmes Park on Saturday, July 25, with a 1960s' vibe, including live music, dance and drama workshops and food stalls.

And bringing the curtain down on the summer of fun will be the Enfield Town and Country Show on September 12 and 13.

The jam-packed weekend includes rural crafts, dog shows, horticulture, circus acts and live music.

State-of-the-art centre gets a big thumbs-up

By Julia Gregory

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

STUDENTS have given their seal of approval to a £6million specialist centre for people with learning difficulties in Southgate.

The Learners with Learning Difficulties and Disabilities Centre of Excellence at Barnet and Southgate College was officially opened in April by gold medal-winning Paralympian and women's London wheelchair marathon winner Baroness Tanni Grey-Thompson.

David Holloway, curriculum manager for learning difficulties and mental health at Barnet and Southgate College's Southgate campus, in High Street, said: "The students are extremely overjoyed to be using such a great facility. It's a state-of-the-art facility in a mainstream campus."

It is also used by groups including the Tottenham Hotspur Foundation, Mencap and Sense, which works with deafblind people.

Facilities include a sensory room equipped with a relaxation area and a space for multi-sensory learning to teach communication skills.

Part of the floor vibrates and plays music when students dance on it and they can interact with images of musical instruments and pictures of rock pools and lily ponds projected on to the wall and floor.

There's also a hydrotherapy pool, specialist classrooms, a sports hall, a cafe, a training flat and a drama room.

Students with learning difficulties aged between 18 and 24 use the centre as well as other facilities on the campus.

Mr Holloway said: "For many of them it's a stepping stone to be integrated with the mainstream college."

"We are about preparing somebody for an independent adulthood and to be economically active," he added.

People can look round during the open day at the Southgate campus from 10am to 3pm on Saturday, June 27.

The Latymer School

Latymer is a co-educational grammar school in Edmonton. Students come from Enfield and surrounding boroughs. Students achieve the highest academic standards but also have a sense of engagement with the community and of public service. As members of the school they make a contribution to the local community, for example by collecting almost 1 tonne of food for the Edmonton Food Bank in December 2013 and in December 2014. Students have also raised money for Barnet Hospital Children's Ward, providing 2 ipads. Year 10 students have recently formed a focus group to offer advice to Barnet General Hospital on how they can best meet the needs of young people on their Children's Ward. Our students assist teachers in local primary schools, for example sixth formers visit during their own study periods to help with mathematics. We are eagerly anticipating a repeat of a garden party for William Preye Day Centre in Edmonton. The photo shows last year's event.

COLLEGE FASHION STUDENTS' DESIGNS HIT THE CATWALK IN ST JOHN THE BAPTIST CHURCH

Barnet and Southgate College Fashion Students recently held their final year show at St. John the Baptist Church, adjacent to the College's Wood Street campus in High Barnet.

The talented students showcased their designs from their final year collections. Tickets were free of charge to the local community, schools, staff, family and friends.

This year's fashion show was particularly exciting for the Diploma and Extended Diploma students as the event also featured garments designed and produced by the Beijing Industry and Trade Technicians College students from China, who the College have been collaborating with on a number of projects this year. A custom built catwalk was erected in front of the stunning stained glass window within the Church and the audience were wowed with an array of colourful and imaginative designs, which students have been working on all year.

Some of the students were also awarded by staff for high achievement throughout the year and for their outstanding collections. Students' inspiration came from a myriad of themes, pictured here are designs by Level 3 Fashion and Clothing student, Jessica Leite. Barnet and Southgate College Principal David Byrne said: "Barnet and Southgate College is extremely proud of all our talented final year Fashion students, who put on an inspirational and very professional show. They've all worked extremely hard putting together their collections, and the end of year catwalk show has become an annual College highlight. It also gives the students a chance to shine and be involved in a real life fashion event, which they may one day be hosting themselves."

HAIRDRESSER AND SALON OWNER MARY AL-KHUDRI WINS GOLD ACCOLADE

Former Barnet and Southgate College student receives Association of Colleges Gold Award.

Staff and students at Barnet and Southgate College are celebrating after alumna Mary Al-Khudri received the Association of Colleges' Gold Award. The awards celebrate the success of further education alumni and acknowledge the vital role that colleges play in building the foundation of successful careers. Staff and students from Barnet and Southgate College attended the star-studded awards ceremony at the House of Commons yesterday, 10th June, where Mary was presented with her AoC Gold Award by Lord Willis of Knaresborough.

On receiving her award, Mary said: "I do enjoy my job and the College did help me to prepare both for the business side and the creative side of the salon. I have now become not only an experienced hairdresser but also I hope a successful businesswoman." Mary was a hairdresser when she was younger but gave it up to raise a family. When she decided to retrain she took a part-time level 2 Hairdressing course at Barnet and Southgate College. She continued to study, achieving a level 3 NVQ Hairdressing qualification while working part-time in a salon. On leaving College, Mary opened a Hair and Beauty Salon aimed at women wearing the hijab, offering a secluded service for women in the Stanmore area. The salon has been open for six years and Mary provides work experience for College students and sends her current apprentice to study there.

Barnet and Southgate College provides high-quality technical and professional education and training for young people, adults and employers. The AoC Gold Awards highlights the role they and other Further Education Colleges in the UK play in providing over three million students with valuable employability skills, helping to develop their career opportunities and strengthen the local, regional and national economy.

Colleges are inspirational places to learn because education and training is delivered by expert teaching staff in industry-standard facilities. From basic skills to postgraduate degrees, colleges offer first rate academic and vocational teaching, in a range of professions including engineering, hospitality, IT, construction and the creative arts.

ROTARY CLUB HELP MAKE A WILD AND WONDERFUL DAY FOR LOCAL CHILDREN AND THEIR CARERS

CHILDREN and their carers were whisked off to spend a day getting back to nature at a wildlife park in the borough.

In an annual tradition that stretches back 20 years the Edmonton Rotary Club treated 160 pupils and 119 staff and carers from West Lea School in Haselbury Road, Edmonton, Durants School in Pitfield Way, Freezywater, and Russett House School in Autumn Close, Enfield, to a day of fun and festivities at Paradise Wildlife Park in Broxbourne.

As well as helping the hundreds of children and adults get to the nature park in five coaches and a fleet of minibuses, members of the Rotary Club were on hand to make sure everyone had a good time, distributing bottles of water to help the children through the thirsty work of touring the wildlife park.

Pat Clark of the Edmonton Rotary Club said that for the club's members the most rewarding aspect of the day were the reactions of their charges.

Pat said: "We spoke to one mother there with her son who said what a joy it was to be in an environment where she was not judged by others for her parenting ability, but could enjoy time with her son."

And he explained that in fact the day out is an educational experience for all

Up in smoke: Firefighters try to get into the secure compound of the building

Blaze by the river

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.s

FIREFIGHTERS had no worries about running short of water when they tackled a blaze at a derelict building close to the banks of the River Lee.

They used hoses to pump water from the river to put out the fire in a disused Thames Water pumping station in Harbet Road, Edmonton, on Monday evening.

Flames ripped through the building, sending plumes of smoke billowing skywards.

More than 20 firefighters from Edmonton, Chingford, Walthamstow and Woodford tackled the blaze.

The alarm was raised at 5.26pm and it took fire crews 40 minutes to bring it under control.

A fire brigade spokesman said: "The ground floor and roof were partly damaged. The cause of the fire is under investigation."

Gangsters galore!

No kids allowed: Cast members from St Monica's Players' production of Bugsy Malone

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

CUSTARD-FIRING Tommy guns, prohibition-era mobsters in sharp suits, pedal cars, chorus girls and gangsters' molls – you don't need to be a wise guy to know it's got to be Bugsy Malone.

In Alan Parker's much-loved 1976 film musical, all the roles were played by children, but the twist in a new stage production at Edmonton's Millfield Theatre, in Silver Street, next week is that the cast are all adults.

The spectacular adaptation by Palmers Green-based amateur dramatics group the St Monica's Players has all the unforgettable characters, fabulous dancing, swinging tunes, razzamatazz and crazy custard-splattering shoot-outs of the movie.

"The services of a 'reputable arms dealer' were enlisted by the company to supply it with the iconic custard-firing splurge guns central to the yarn.

"The guns are theatrical props which are custom-made," explained actor Warren McWilliams, who plays Bugsy,

"The film musical was deliberately simplistic because children were in the roles and that's what makes it so endearing," he added, "but with an adult cast we can bring an extra dimension by developing the characters, improvising more and introducing dynamic dance routines and more slapstick."

Set in the 1920s, Bugsy Malone is the story of boxing scout Bugsy, his singer girlfriend Blousey Brown and the shady denizens of Fat Sam's Grand Slam Speakeasy. When rival gang boss Dandy Dan obtains a "splurge" gun, a gangland war between his mob and Fat Sam and his bumbling henchmen breaks out, with Bugsy caught in the crossfire.

The show runs for four evenings from next Wednesday (June 24) to Saturday (June 27), with a matinee performance on Saturday afternoon.

Holmes and away

MR HOLMES (PG, 104 mins)

NO one is immune to the allure of that cruel and merciless mistress: time.

She saps strength and suppleness from athletic bodies, defies every cream to wither beauty and dulls the sharpest intellects.

Mr Holmes imagines the twilight years of one of literature's icons, who is facing the grim reality of dementia with what remains of his once-glorious wit, aided by doses of a rare restorative plant from Japan called Prickly Ash.

This Sherlock, portrayed with dignity and steely resolve by Sir Ian McKellen, is no longer the aloof master of deduction who traversed the pages of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's imagination.

Instead, he tends bees on the Sussex coast, haunted by the one case he failed to solve – if only he could recall the facts.

Bill Condon's slow-burning drama tests our little grey cells with a perplexing subplot: The Curious Case Of The Thrice Oscar-Nominated Actress And The Wayward Accent.

Laura Linney is one of the finest performers of her generation, but here she is undone by a vocal delivery that roams wildly between the West Country, Ireland and America.

Her valiant struggles are an unnecessary distraction.

The year is 1947 and Holmes, now 93, is a shadow of the brilliant logician, who once held court at 221b Baker Street flanked by Dr Watson (Colin Starkey) and Mrs Hudson (Sarah Crowden).

The ageing sleuth has retired to Cuckmere Haven, where he fusses over his hives, struggles to piece together fractured memories and infuriates his widowed housekeeper, Mrs Munro (Linney).

Her spirited son Roger (Milo Parker) is fascinated by Sherlock and the boy shows a natural aptitude with the bees.

"Exceptional children are often the product of unremarkable parents," Holmes coldly observes, wounding Mrs Munro.

The lad inspires Sherlock to delve into the fog of the past to recall his only unsolved case – a missing person inquiry in 1919 involving a distraught husband, Thomas Kelmot (Patrick Kennedy), and his beautiful wife, Ann (Hattie Morahan).

As Sherlock's addled mind drifts between that ill-fated investigation and the present, the old man edges ever closer to an inglorious end.

Mr Holmes is distinguished by McKellen's measured central performance and the strong support from rising star Parker.

The script slowly unravels the myth of the literary sleuth, including one bittersweet scene of the ageing Sherlock watching a film in which Hollywood star Basil Rathbone portrays him with unnatural gusto.

Plotting is pedestrian. There are no twists or big reveals, allowing us plenty of time to marvel at the picturesque locations, including one breathtaking shot of the White Cliffs of Dover.

There are already two Sherlocks gracing our TV screens, with Benedict Cumberbatch the successor to Jeremy Brett's definitive role of the 1980s, and we'll, no doubt, meet Holmes again, in many different guises, but few will be as heartbreakingly frail or haunting as this.

Making your property feel spacious Buyers typically search for properties with large rooms that they can adapt to suit their lifestyles. Nick Dean from Ellis & Co Edmonton offers some advice on how to make your rooms feel spacious so your property stands out in the summer market.

Firstly, it's important to de-clutter rooms in order to think about the space pragmatically. Once you have done this, you can take some time to consider how you might rearrange your furniture before potential buyers come for a viewing. An age-old trick for staging a room is to choose fewer, large pieces of furniture rather than lots of small items – this will help avoid a hectic look. While presenting your room in this way may not appeal to your individual taste, you will most likely achieve a better response from your buyers, helping you to move more quickly.

When choosing furniture, it's a good idea to opt for pieces made from glass or another transparent material as these appear to take up less room, as do sofas and armchairs with exposed legs. In the kitchen, try replacing a few solid cupboard doors with glass panels to create depth, but remember to keep the contents neat and tidy, ready for a viewing.

Effective lighting is another ploy to make your rooms appear larger. Making the most of natural light always helps achieve the airy feel we associate with open spaces, so it's worth avoiding heavy curtains and instead opting for neat blinds. You could also invest in privacy window film, which lets in the natural light but averts unwanted attention from passing pedestrians. Another trick is to avoid overhead lighting, which concentrates attention on one area and instead place lamps in various corners to draw the eye to different parts of the room. There are a number of decorating techniques that can be applied to make a room feel more spacious. Strong, dark colours absorb light and make a room seem smaller, so go for lighter, pastel shades. Painting your cornicing, dado rails and skirting boards in lighter shades than your walls will create a perception of depth, while painting some of your furniture in similar shades to your walls will help them blend in to the background and avoid a crowded feel.

Striped decoration and soft furnishings can have a significant impact on the perception of space. Horizontal stripes on any wall will accentuate its length, so in a narrow room, try using them on the shorter sides to help make the room appear wider. Similarly, vertical stripes help to make a room seem taller and choosing floor-length curtains is a simple way of creating the perception of height. Fixing shelves near to the ceiling will also draw the eye upwards and help to keep clutter away from eye level.

In the garden, similar principles apply, and the direction of the stripes when you mow your lawn can make a difference – try creating diagonal stripes to make your outside space particularly eye-catching.

However small your property, there are many tricks you can use to make it appear more spacious and making a few select changes can make a huge difference when it comes to selling.

■ SALES ■ SECOND HAND ■ SERVICING ■ ACCESSORIES

Not one for the faint-hearted

By Iain Dooley

THE name may be familiar, but this Civic Type-R is very different from the old one. The biggest change is under the bonnet where, for the first time, a hot Honda skips the naturally aspirated route and goes for the current vogue of turbocharging to create a VTEC Turbo.

Putting all that power on the road is a new suspension system that's designed to reduce torque steer and a mechanical limited slip differential, too.

A reactive adaptive damping system is fitted as standard and there's a +R mode that reduces steering assistance, sharpens the throttle response and backs off the stability control a little. Add to that a wild exterior that's shaped by the wind tunnel and influenced by the racing versions, and you have the potential for the most extreme Civic Type-R ever.

You're not going to mistake the Type-R for another Civic or some other hot hatch. For the moment at least it is the most aggressive-looking hot hatch on the market, and while it's perhaps not to all tastes, there's no doubting that it is eye-catching. The massive rear spoiler, big wheels with rubber-band tyres and the aero-look wheel arches are impossible to miss.

There's nothing lacking in the image department either as the Type-R badge has been absent from the market for four years, making the older models cherished items.

Handily, the Type-R is based on the spacious and practical Civic five-door, so the compromises over the standard car are relatively modest. Up front, there are very supportive sports seats, although their bulk does mean rear knee room is fractionally reduced and the big side bolsters need a little care to negotiate. However, the boot remains large and well-shaped and the cabin storage is decent, too. It's still a car that can cope with family life in its stride.

The new engine dominates the driving experience and the switch to turbocharging has transformed the way this Type-R behaves compared to its predecessors. With a huge slug of torque at low revs, you can be lazy with the gear changes and still make good progress, although the shift itself is very slick and satisfying to use.

Even though it is pushing 306bhp through the front wheels, there is almost a complete absence of torque steer – on Slovakian roads at least – and while you can feel the nose working hard, the steering remains impressively uncorrupted.

In +R mode it feels more aggressive still, potentially too firm for a broken UK B-road, but on track it makes for flat and composed cornering. The Vehicle Dynamic Assistance also allows a good degree of slip before nudging you back into line.

Checking in under £30,000 for a 167mph top speed is no mean feat in itself, but the standard equipment list is impressive with all the high performance kit such as the limited slip differential and Brembo Brakes, climate and cruise control, Bluetooth, rear parking camera and City Brake system as standard. £32,295 gets you the GT version which adds a suite of additional safety systems, automatic lights and wipers and an upgraded audio system including satnav.

Hot hatch fans should be queueing up for this one. There are important rivals yet to arrive on the scene, but for now at least the Civic Type-R is the pick of the bunch – fast, capable, enormous fun and pleasingly free from compromise. That makes it a car not for the faint-hearted and family buyers will need to be committed, but the pay-off is a sharp hot hatch that entertains like little else.

MASON THRILLED WITH PROGRESS

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

RYAN MASON admits that he will look back on last season with fond memories after enjoying a dramatic rise through the ranks over the past 12 months.

The midfielder began the campaign on the fringes of the Tottenham Hotspur side but ended up becoming a key member of the team – making 37 appearances in all competitions and securing his first senior cap with England.

And, having spent the previous season playing on loan at Swindon Town in League One, Mason is thrilled with the way that his fortunes have been transformed.

“We had a new gaffer and everyone came in with a clean slate,” he said. “It was down to how you performed in pre-season and I felt I came back in good shape and did well throughout pre-season.

“It’s bizarre when you look at the road I’ve travelled. I was playing in League One the season before and struggling with injury, never getting a consistent run.

“So to look at last season, it’s been incredible. At the same time a lot of hard work has gone into it. I’ve put in a lot of work to be ready once the opportunity came around, to make sure I took it.

“I had opportunities to leave the club but never wanted to because I always thought, imagined and dreamed I’d play for Spurs at White Hart Lane.”

Mason added: “I never felt that I’d want to leave and actually go through with it. There were times when I thought it might not happen, of course, but there was always something in the back of my head telling me that I would walk out at White Hart Lane one day.”

Meanwhile, Ben Davies has set his sights on regaining full fitness by the time that Spurs begin pre-season training next month.

The left-back suffered a dislocated shoulder in Tottenham’s match against Southampton in April, which ruled him out of the end of the Premier League campaign and also saw him miss Wales’ key Euro 2016 qualifier with Belgium on Friday night.

But, despite being frustrated by his time on the sidelines, Davies is confident that he will be able to play a full part in Spurs’ preparations for next season.

“It was frustrating to miss what was probably the biggest qualifying match for Wales,” he said. “It was our biggest game in a long, long time, but it’s part and parcel of football.

“I could have missed a lot of club football as well if the injury had come slightly earlier, but hopefully I won’t miss too much football now.

“I’ll be in over the summer, will work hard to get fit and that will give a head start in pre-season. I’ve no trips away booked. I’m sure I’ll get a couple of days here or there but I’ve nothing more planned as my focus is to get fit over the summer.

“I’ve set myself targets to get stronger and fitter, and hopefully by pre-season I’ll be back involved in everything. Pre-season will be a fresh start for everyone.”

Dramatic rise: Ryan Mason is delighted that he managed to establish himself at Tottenham last season

North Middlesex return to winning ways

NORTH MIDDLESEX got back on track in fine style by romping to a 140-run win at Stanmore in the Premier Division of the Middlesex County Cricket League on Saturday.

Successive league defeats had seen North Middlesex’s perfect opening to the season come to an abrupt halt, but they overcame a slow start in this match to out-class their struggling hosts.

The visitors slipped to 39-3 after being put into to bat, but Evan Flowers transformed the contest with a superb innings before he fell just one run short of a deserved century.

Tom Nicoll (46) and Joe Hewton (47) helped Flowers to add 92 and 86 for the fourth and fifth wickets respectively and North Middlesex eventually made it up to 274-9 before declaring.

Joel Hughes (5-50) and Sam Webber (3-31) then ripped through Stanmore’s top order to leave them reeling at 20-6 and some stubborn resistance from Rishi Pandya (61) and Grant Reingold (41) could not prevent them from being dismissed for 143.

Meanwhile, Hornsey endured a disappointing day in Division Two as they were crushed by eight wickets by Harrow St Mary’s to slip from second to fourth in the table.

Kunj Thakkar proved to be their main destroyer as he took 5-29 when Hornsey were dismissed for just 103 before striking an unbeaten 50 to help Harrow St Mary’s cruise to 104-2 in reply.

Elsewhere, Highgate remain top of Division Three despite having to settle for a winning draw from Saturday’s derby match at home to basement side North London.

Some consistent batting saw Highgate post a total of 293 batting first, despite the best efforts of Ed Grealley (6-102).

But, although North London never threatened to reach their target, Yasir Hasmi (100 not out) and Richard Hall (57) shone with the bat to enable them to comfortably secure just their second point of the season as they closed on 200-4.

North Middlesex play host to Hampstead on Saturday, while Hornsey go to Brondesbury, North London entertain Winchmore Hill and Highgate make the trip to South Hampstead.

Another heavy loss for the Skolars

THE London Skolars endured another difficult day on Sunday as they crashed to a 40-10 defeat at York City Knights in rugby league’s Kingstone Press Championship One.

The Skolars have only won once in the league all season to leave them just one place off the foot of the table and they were again comprehensively outplayed by in-form York in this match.

Despite not being at their free-flowing best, the hosts took control from the start and opened the scoring in the eighth minute through a Nev Morrison try.

A rout appeared to be on the cards when they struck again three minutes later – Josh Tonks blasting through the defence and putting Jordan Howden clear to touch down and further tries from Ryan Mallinder and Howden left York 20-0 ahead inside the first half hour.

But the Skolars, who did produce a better performance than when they lost 78-10 to the same opposition in the iPro Sports Cup in March, finally got on the scoreboard from their first attack of note when James Anthony latched on to Marcus Elliott’s clever kick to claim a try which Elliott converted.

York responded to this within minutes though as Jack Aldous touched down shortly before the interval to leave them 26-6 ahead, and the hosts continued to dominate in the second period – with Greg Minikin taking full advantage of some good work from Morrison to touch down.

Further scores from Tonks and Liam Cunningham took the hosts’ total up to 40 points by the hour mark, but it was the Skolars who enjoyed the better of the final quarter and they got some reward for their efforts when Joe Price – making his return to the side after a year away – deservedly claimed a consolation try on 64 minutes.

The London Skolars entertain Gateshead Thunder on Sunday.
